III. Facts

CLASSWIDE FACTUAL ALLEGATIONS

58. During all relevant times, Defendants have operated the Peddler Steakhouse in Dillon, South Carolina.

59. Plaintiffs and the similarly situated persons they seek to represent are current and former servers or other employees paid minimum wage minus a tip credit (herein, “servers”) employed by Defendants at the Peddler Steakhouse in Dillon, South Carolina.

60. All servers employed by Defendants over the last three years had essentially the same job duties – to serve food and drinks to customers.

61. At all relevant times, Defendants paid servers below minimum wage.

62. Defendants purported to pay servers tip credit minimum wage, which is $2.13 per hour.

63. However, Defendants failed to satisfy all of the requirements in taking a tip credit from servers’ wages. Specifically, Defendants required servers to share tips with the “house,” or the restaurant itself.

64. Servers have complained to Defendants about the house tip-out, but the policy was not changed.

65. Defendants failed to provide proper notice to servers that they would be taking a tip credit from their wages.

66. Defendants required servers to pay 10% of their total tips directly to the restaurant.

67. At the end of each night, the servers pool their tips together and enter the total amount of tips received in a notebook inside the restaurant. The servers take 10% of the total tips, place it in an envelope, and slip it under the office door for management.

68. Defendants kept the tips they received from their servers.

69. Defendants required servers to purchase slip-resistant work shoes to work at Peddler Steakhouse.

70. Defendants required servers to purchase black slacks, a black shirt, and a black tie to wear as a uniform.

71. Defendants required server to purchase and/or provide their own tools of employment, such as pens and paper.

72. On some occasions, servers spend some amounts of time—10 or 15 minutes—off the clock at the end of their shifts because they are shutting down the restaurant and calculating tip shares.

PLAINTIFFS' INDIVIDUAL FACTUAL ALLEGATIONS

73. Consistent with their policies, patterns, and practices as described herein, Defendants harmed Plaintiff, individually, as follows:

74. Brandi Williamson worked as a server at the Peddler Steakhouse in Dillon, South Carolina from approximately 2012 until the present.

75. Plaintiff typically worked 25-30 hours per week for Defendants.

76. As a server, Plaintiff's primary job duties included waiting on guests.

77. Plaintiff was paid $2.13 per hour for all hours worked.

78. Plaintiff was never informed of the tip credit provisions of the FLSA by Defendants. When she was hired, she was not told anything about how she would be paid or the requirements for taking a tip credit by Defendants.

79. At the end of each shift, Plaintiff was required to gather all of her tips together with the other servers, and to give 10% of the total tips to the restaurant itself. The remainder of the tips were split between the servers based on the number of hours each of them worked on that particular day. These payments were documented in a notebook inside the restaurant.

80. Plaintiff was required to purchase non-slip shoes, a black dress shirt, black slacks, and a black tie to wear as a uniform for the benefit of Defendants.

IV. Collective Action Allegations

81. Plaintiff brings the First Count on behalf of herself and all similarly situated current and former servers employed at the Peddler Steakhouse owned, operated, and controlled by Defendants in Dillon, South Carolina, during the three years prior to the filing of this Class Action Complaint and the date of final judgment in this matter, who elect to opt-in to this action (the “FLSA Collective”).

82. At all relevant times, Plaintiff and the FLSA Collective have been similarly situated, have had substantially similar job duties, requirements, and pay provisions, and have all been subject to Defendants’ decision, policy, plan, practices, procedures, protocols, and rules of willfully refusing to pay Plaintiff and the FLSA Collective minimum wage for all hours worked, failing to properly inform servers of the tip credit requirements of the FLSA, and requiring servers to make tip-out payments to the restaurant itself. Plaintiff’s claims are essentially the same as those of the FLSA Collective.

83. Defendants’ unlawful conduct is pursuant to a corporate policy or practice of minimizing labor costs by failing to properly pay Plaintiff and the FLSA Collective.

84. Defendants are aware or should have been aware that federal law requires them to inform any employee from whose wages they intend to take a tip credit of the tip credit provisions of the FLSA.

85. Defendants are aware or should have been aware that federal law prohibits them from paying employees tip credit minimum wage unless they adhere to certain rules, including rules against misappropriating employee tips.

86. Defendants are aware or should have been aware that federal law prohibits them from taking deductions from employees' wages for certain uniforms and other expenses.

87. Defendants' unlawful conduct has been widespread, repeated, and consistent.

88. The First Count is properly brought under and maintained as an opt-in collective action under 29 U.S.C. § 216(b).

89. The FLSA Collective members are readily identifiable and ascertainable.

90. For the purpose of notice and other purposes related to this action, the FLSA Collective members' names and contact information are readily available from Defendants' records.

91. In recognition of the services Plaintiff has rendered and will continue to render to the FLSA Collective, Plaintiff will request payment of a service award upon resolution of this action.

V. South Carolina Class Action Allegations

92. Plaintiff brings the Second Count under Federal Rule of Civil Procedure 23, on behalf of themselves and a class of persons consisting of:

All persons who work or worked as servers and/or have been paid minimum wage minus a tip credit at the Peddler Steakhouse in Dillon, South Carolina between November 7, 2014 and the date of final judgment in this matter (the "South Carolina Class”).

93. Excluded from the South Carolina Class are Defendants’ legal representatives, officers, directors, assigns, and successors, or any individual who has, or who at any time during the class period has had, a controlling interest in Defendants; the Judge(s) to whom this case is assigned and any member of the Judges’ immediate family; and all persons who will submit timely and otherwise proper requests for exclusion from the South Carolina Class.

94. The number and identity of the South Carolina Class members are ascertainable from Defendants’ records. The hours assigned and worked, the positions held, and the rates of pay, tips received, and deductions made from the pay of each South Carolina Class Member are also determinable from Defendants’ records. For the purpose of notice and other purposes related to this action, their names and contact information are available from Defendants. Notice can be provided by means permissible under Federal Rule of Civil Procedure 23.

95. The South Carolina Class members are so numerous that joinder of all members is impracticable, and the disposition of their claims as a class will benefit the parties and the Court.

96. There are more than 50 South Carolina Class members.

97. Plaintiff’s claims are typical of those claims which could be alleged by any South Carolina Class member, and the relief sought is typical of the relief which would be sought by each South Carolina Class member in separate actions.

98. Plaintiff and the South Carolina Class members were subject to the same corporate practices of Defendants, as alleged herein, of having their tips unlawfully deducted by Defendants.

99. Plaintiff and the South Carolina Class members have all sustained similar types of damages as a result of Defendants’ failure to comply with S.C. Code Ann. § 41-10-10, et seq.

100. Plaintiff and the South Carolina Class members have all been injured in that they have been uncompensated or under-compensated due to Defendants' common policies, practices, and patterns of conduct. Defendants' corporate-wide policies and practices affected all South Carolina Class members similarly, and Defendants benefited from the same type of unfair and/or wrongful acts as to each of the South Carolina Class members.

101. Plaintiff and the South Carolina Class members sustained similar losses, injuries, and damages arising from the same unlawful practices, policies, and procedures.

102. By seeking to represent the interests of the South Carolina Class members, Plaintiff is exercising and intends to exercise her right to engage in concerted activity for the mutual aid or benefit of herself and her co-workers.

103. Plaintiff is able to fairly and adequately protect the interests of the South Carolina Class and have no interests antagonistic to the South Carolina Class.

104. Plaintiff is represented by attorneys who are experienced and competent in both class action litigation and employment litigation.

105. A class action is superior to other available methods for the fair and efficient adjudication of the controversy, particularly in the context of wage and hour litigation on behalf of minimum wage employees where individual class members lack the financial resources to vigorously prosecute a lawsuit against corporate defendants. Class action treatment will permit a large number of similarly situated persons to prosecute their common claims in a single forum simultaneously, efficiently, and without the unnecessary duplication of efforts and expense that numerous individual actions engender. Because the losses, injuries, and damages suffered by each of the individual South Carolina Class members are small in the sense pertinent to class action analysis, the expenses and burden of individual litigation would make it extremely difficult or impossible for the individual South Carolina Class members to redress the wrongs done to them. On the other hand, important public interests will be served by addressing the matter as a class action. The adjudication of individual litigation claims would result in a great expenditure of Court and public resources; however, treating the claims as a class action would result in significant saving of these costs. The prosecution of separate actions by individual class members would create a risk of inconsistent and/or varying adjudications with respect to the individual South Carolina Class members, establishing incompatible standards of conduct for Defendants and resulting in the impairment of the South Carolina Class members' rights and the disposition of their interests through actions to which they were not parties. The issues in this action can be decided by means of common, class-wide proof. In addition, if appropriate, the Court can, and is empowered to, fashion methods to efficiently manage this action as a class action.

106. Upon information and belief, Defendants and other employers throughout the state violate S.C. Code Ann. § 41-10-10, et seq. Current employees are often afraid to assert their rights out of fear of direct and indirect retaliation. Former employees are fearful of bringing claims because doing so can harm their employment, future employment, and future efforts to secure employment. Class actions provide class members who are not named in the complaint a degree of anonymity, which allows for the vindication of their rights while eliminating or reducing these risks.

107. This action is properly maintainable as a class action under Federal Rule of Civil Procedure 23(b)(3).

108. Common questions of law and fact exist as to the South Carolina Class that predominate over any questions only affecting the South Carolina Class Representatives and the South Carolina Class members individually and include, but are not limited to:

- a. Whether Defendants took deductions from the wages and/or tips of Plaintiff and the South Carolina Class;
- b. Whether Defendants' policy of taking deductions from the wages and/or tips of Plaintiff and the South Carolina Class was instituted willfully or with reckless disregard of the law; and
- c. The nature and extent of class-wide injury and the measure of damages for those injuries.

109. In recognition of the services Plaintiff has rendered and will continue to render to the South Carolina Class, Plaintiff will request payment of a service award upon resolution of this action.

Designation of this action as a collective action on behalf of the collective action members and prompt issuance of notice to all similarly-situated members of an opt-in class, apprising them of this action, permitting them to assert timely wage and hour claims in this action, and appointment of Plaintiff and their counsel to represent the collective action members;

B. Unpaid minimum wages and an additional and equal amount as liquidated damages pursuant to the FLSA and supporting regulations;
